Emo, is there a time that you'd like to speak, or is it the case that since we're providing our rates (see below), your position is the same as David's and you don't view a call as necessary?

David, per your request below, the rates are as follows:

Here are our rates for the main billers. Our rates generally remain the same during the course of a case, and did so here:

Lee Kaplan (senior partner)– 750
Ty Doyle (partner)– 345
Alex Wolf (associate) – 300
Michelle Stratton (counsel)– 400
Terri Matthies (paralegal) – 190
Termaine Owens (paralegal/lit support) – 110

Littler's rates:

Rates in 2015 (April)

Scott McDonald (senior partner) – 570
Allan Neighbors (partner) – 415
Tim Rybacki (associate) – 365

Rates in 2014 (April)

Scott – 555
Allan – 405
Tim – 355

Rates in 2013 (May)

Scott – 540
Allan – 395
Tim – 325
Other associates – 275-315

Rates in 2012 (April)

Scott – 515
Allan – 340
Tim – 300
Kimberly Miers (partner) – 370
Other associates – 290
Paralegals – 165-175

Thanks. So basically your client's claim to fees boils down to arguing that everything is inextricably intertwined with the contract claim and for sanctions under Rule 37. Section 1927 does not permit sanctions against a party. We already briefed our position on the contract claim and Rule 37, so I don't know what we need to discuss.

That takes care of items 1 and 2. Item 3 is the reasonableness of your rates. Do you have a handy list of the rates that are built into your attorneys' fee demand?
